Wisconsin Crow Drinks Only Richest of Cream

HARTFORD, WIS. — This crow, Hartford residents say, is no ordinary bird.

The crow can talk a little. But that's nothing new with crows. This one, though has a taste for the finer things of life. He tries it out each morning on the milkman. The vagabond bird pulls off the bottle caps and drinks the cream. He won't touch homogenized milk. The milkman hid the bottles, but the crow found them.

The only thing the milkman can do is cover his deliveries with heavy cardboard cartons.

Army Stops Hiring Civilians For U. S. Jobs in Germany

BERLIN.—The army has stopped hiring American civilians for military government jobs in Germany.

Col. James T. Duke, personnel officer, said that recruitment had been frozen because considerable change in organization is expected when the army turns the occupation job over to a civilian high commissioner.

Military government now has about 2,500 American employes in the American zone and in the United States sector of Berlin. The staff once was three times its present size but now, after a year and a half of steady paring, the Americans have the smallest pay roll of all the occupying powers. Latest figures showed the British with 8,000 and the French with 9,000.

APPOMATTOX

is a plentiful supply of available to Appomattox farmers for feeding livestock and they are furnished without charge in 100 lb. burlap bags, according to Bennett Harding, chairman of the County A. C. A. Committee.

potatoes come from the eastern producing area and of secondary grades and sizes which growers are holding for the commercial market at a self-imposed marketing cost. The U. S. Department of Agriculture, under a contract with the Extension Service, is shipping potatoes to counties for demonstration and livestock feeding. Mr. Harding said that any farmer with cattle may apply for potatoes to the R. S. Hudgins, County Agent.

feeding demonstration is aimed to plan developed late last season only fifty cars were available before the potato harvest was completed. This year farmers have no trouble getting all the potatoes which they can use and they place orders immediately. Shipping is already well under way and will probably be over in a few days.

present it appears that a thousand more cars of livestock potatoes could be offered to those counties in such request. Certain counties are taking full advantage of the feeding plan and at the same time assisting the State officials in disposing of the crop. Counties which have placed substantial orders are Richland, 22 cars; Mecklenburg, Prince George, 15; Rappahannock, Greene, 11. Cars are limited to 300 bags each.

Hudgins advises that due to the shortage of pastures, livestock producers could advantageously use these potatoes for roughage.

JAPANESE MAYOR LOOKS AT APPOMATTOX SOUVENIR

M. MATSUO, Mayor of the city of Shimonaseki, Japan, is shown holding a souvenir from Appomattox, Virginia. The souvenir was one of some thirty mailed from here to mayors of cities all over the world where PEACE was made after a war. Two teams have 200,000 population. Mayor Matsuo sent a nice package of souvenirs from his city to Mayor George Buchanan, of Appomattox. An important Asiatic peace was signed in Shimonoseki in 1895.

Collins And Almond To Get Solid Support

Irrespective of the contest for the Democratic nomination for Governor, where four candidates are sparing for support in the August 2nd primary election, it appears that Appomattox County will give a big vote to L. Preston Collins for the office of Lieutenant Governor, and to L. Lindsay Almond for Attorney General.

Mr. Collins, the incumbent, is being opposed by Nick Prillaman, of Martinsville. Mr. Almond, also the incumbent, is being opposed by Moss A. Plunkett, of Roanoke.

State Senator Chas. T. Moses, an active leader in the campaign of Horace H. Edwards for Governor, stated yesterday that he urged the voters of Appomattox County to give a fine vote to both Mr. Collins and Mr. Almond. As Lieutenant-Governor, Mr. Collins presides over the State Senate, of which Mr. Moses is a member. He declared that Mr. Collins was an able and outstanding leader and merited the active support of the voters, He also praised the record of Attorney General Almond.

Local leaders of the campaign of John S. Battle for Governor, are likewise known to be enthusiastic in supporting both Collins and Almond. Four years ago, Appomattox County gave a top-heavy majority to Collins, providing just about the majority enabling him to win over Charles Fenwick, of Arlington. In that campaign, W. M. Abbitt was state manager for Collins, and won wide recognition for the effective manner in which he successfully led the drive for votes. Having given Collins a wide margin in his first bid for state office, it is considered almost certain that Collins will get similar support here in August.

List of eligible voters are now being prepared. Appomattox County will have 2,404 voters eligible to participate in Democratic and Republican primaries. A Republican primary will be something of a new experience, since Republican candidates in the past have been nominated by convention.

(The four Democratic candidates for Governor are: John S. Battle, Remmie L. Arnold, Horace H. Edwards and Francis Pickens Miller.

Vast Sum Has Been Spent In This County

A total of $2,708,924 has been expended on the roads of Appomattox County since the state went into the business of building and maintaining highways in Virginia.

This was disclosed today with the publication of a statistical appendix to the State Highway Commission's annual report for the fiscal year 1947-48.

From the time that the State Highway System was established in 1918, a total of $1,687,018 has been expended for maintenance and construction on the primary highways of this county.

And since the State took over the county highways under the Road Law of 1932, a total of $1,021,906 has been expended on the secondary roads of Appomattox County.

All in all, according to the statistical report, a total of $336,294,257 has been expended on the primary highways since 1918, A total of $145,585,868 has been invested in the secondary roads since 1932.

Despite these expenditures, the highways of the state still are not adequate for present day motor traffic. In other words, as one state highway engineer commented: "Good roads cost money . . . and they don't last forever. Unfortunately, there is no such thing as a permanent highway."

In the early days of state road construction in Virginia, a mile of hard-surfaced highway might cost as little as $4,000. Today, the minimum cost per mile for a very light duty highway is $15,000. A mile of heavy duty highway cost as much as $100,000. The figure doubles if the route is four-lane divided.

The cost of maintenance, too, has risen sharply. Increasing traffic means more wear and tear. Materials cost more. And as hard-surfaced mileage is extended on the secondary system, maintenance becomes a bigger item. It costs twice as much to maintain a hard-surfaced route as to maintain an unsurfaced route.

Indo-China held to be a danger spot in Far East.

J. W. Cawthon, Town Manager, Plans To Retire

It is understood that J. W. Cawthon, town clerk and sergeant since January 1, 1931, plans to retire as of September 1st. Mr. Cawthon announced his plans several weeks ago and advises that his resignation is in the hands of town authorities.

Mr. Cawthon was the first mayor of Appomattox when the town was incorporated in 1925. Thus for almost 25 years he has been active in conducting the business of the town and helping in shaping the growth of the community.

The title of town clerk, sergeant and manager is inadequate to describe the service of Mr. Cawthon, or, as he is affectionately known, "Cousin Jimmy." It is freely conceded that no other person is so well posted as to the town's business. In the maintenance and improvement of town streets and of town property, in knowledge of the town laws, ordinances, rights of way, budgets, tax collections, etc., he has been and is a faithful and loyal guardian of public interests. His duties have been as varied as the life and activity of a rapidly growing community.

In event that Mr. Cawthon goes through with his plan to retire, it will be exceedingly hard to replace him. Fortunately, he will be available for counsel and guidance.

Forest Ranger Closes Old Wells In Area

Chief Forest Ranger J. C. Hayes has recently been busy searching out and destroying dug wells on the State Forests in Appomattox, Buckingham,Cumberland and Prince Edward Counties. Several of these were of depths of 80 to 90 feet, and, of course, large enough to make it easily possible for a man to fall in. They are located at old house sites abandoned before or at the time the land was acquired by the government, before the areas came into state possession.

Although all were covered, many are of unknown location and the danger of the cover breaking or caving in is serious.

Chief Ranger Hayes and his men have destroyed twenty such wells. All known wells which are dangerous have been disposed of, but several of these wells have been discovered of which he had no previous knowledge. Virginia Forest Service is anxious to make a complete clean up of dangerous wells, and will proceed immediately to destroy any such wells discovered. All persons having knowledge of any dangerous dug wells on any of the State Forests are urged to communicate at once with Chief Forest Ranger Hayes at Cumberland, Va.
